

APPENDIX IX: CLOSING REPORT

Tonight there were five bussers on the second floor, four bussers on the third floor, and first floor's bussers did food running due to the floor being closed. However, I was pulled from second floor bussing to help the bay hosts and take drink orders. This left three people on the Tee-line and one person at the main bar.

There was an issue on the second floor with Jeremiah wondering off, leaving Jace and Jordan to bus the floor. Gunnar was asked to leave the third floor to help the second floor while Zac spoke with Jeremiah. This caused Jeremiah to work slightly harder, but he still did not want to do the closing duties that he was delegated. Aside from that, he would also take a bus cart down and leave it for others to clear.

On the flip side, Chad did very well on the third floor. Morgen, Eric, and Gunnar played to his strength and had him run bus carts to the dish-pit and back. Joseph did well bussing the main bar tables as well. He organizes the bus carts very well and could probably save us a lot of trips to the dish-pit if we could get everyone to organize the carts the way he does. Jordan did well on the second floor also, but she is more comfortable working as a food runner. She also helped clear the back dock, which Zac and Bruce checked.

The back dock was, however, mostly cleared when we discovered four or five mats that the kitchen had set outside while it was being cleaned. Jace took a picture of the mats to document it. This just added more time and frustration to the cleanup process back there.

As far as drink running goes, the bay hosts did pretty well with taking their own drinks on the second floor when they were able to. The only host that there were any issues with was Jessica Arata. She would see her drinks in the well and just expect Fon to take them as soon as possible, which is not fair to the drink runner or other hosts.

The last point that needs to be covered is the maggots under the dumpsters. Water was not effective on them tonight. Some type of repellent or killer is needed to rid the dumpsters of them.
